08h00 – 17h00

What: As governments prepare for the upcoming UN Climate Change Conference in Durban (28 November to 09 December 2011), the United Nations and the South African Department of International Relations and Cooperation (DIRCO) invite media representatives to a one-day interactive pre-COP workshop.

The workshop, which will take place the week after the final international ministerial meeting to prepare for the Durban conference, will update media representatives on the status of the complex negotiations of the 17th Conference of the Parties (COP17) to the United Nations Climate Change Convention (UNFCCC) as they continue the search for common ground on the crucial next steps to design an effective international response to climate change.

Christiana Figueres, Executive Secretary of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) and Ambassador NJ Mxakato-Diseko, Ambassador-at-Large for the South African COP Presidency, will shed light on the negotiations, including an update on the preparatory meeting in Panama this October and the ministerial meeting in South Africa. The workshop will also examine some of the most critical climate change challenges facing Africa and discuss innovative solutions already underway.

The workshop will provide substantive resources and logistical and technical advice for media representatives relating to their coverage of COP 17. In addition, United Nations speakers will share information and insights regarding climate change itself, especially as it affects Africa.
